Additional Required Credits		(7)
Students may take 7 or more additional credits in available law courses, not necessarily related to business or financial law, and from which they are not restricted. By way of illustration but not limitation, LL.M. degree program students are generally restricted from enrolling in courses required in the JD degree program per our American Bar Association accreditation standards, and JD program Legal Research and Writing courses. In addition, LL.M. students are generally restricted from courses for which they do not meet a given/noted prerequisite.		7
